

REPORT ON SPARK

This report examines the evolution of travel Industry and also it clarifies the current structure of the travel and tourism .In my project I have made the website in which you have the opportunity to book the tickets of your new destination all around the world you wish to travel. This is the website that can help you fulfill your dreams with the greater offers available for the customers. The idea to making this website came to be randomly. I started working on the project and within the span of 2-3 months my website was ready.

The most difficult part for me in this project to design the attractive layout so that the persons can get attracted towards my website and more people visit my website. Next challenge was to choose the best and user friendly database so I and my friend's team decided that to move on the DJANGO database which is a user friendly as well as and has more security features. The front end of the database is designed on the HTML, CSS, BOOTSTRAP, JAVASCRIPT .It is a responsive website i.e. it opens differently on different platforms. There are different tables in the database that have been created by taking proper care of the primary key, foreign key etc.

The main objective of making this project was to make one final year project and to provide users with the best of the deals available. Travel and tourism industry is really complicated and usually is considered as umbrella industry, since its dependence on a lot of factors and sectors which are working together, therefore every section should work correctly in order to be successful.

This industry encompasses transportation system, accommodations, tour operators, travel agencies, cruise lines, adventure companies, receptive operators, convention bureaus and so on.

Domestic tourism is when people from a country take holidays, short breaks and day trip in their own homeland. Like a couple who take a two days break to visit their relatives in their own country. Inbound tourism is when some people enter to another country form their home country. Like a business group which enter England in order to attend a conference. Outbound tourism this terms is used when the people travel form their own country to visit the other part of the world for leisure or baseness.
